Stop Making God a Priority

by John Odom

Presbyter for Community Life

Too often I hear well-meaning church leaders encouraging the faithful to make God a priority in their lives. God—who is often somewhere between #34 “Saving for retirement” and #40 “Eating Healthy”—winds up on our priority list of things that have little in common with each other. That’s why we make priority lists in the first place. When we prioritize family, then job, then friends, we are saying that all of these things are different and distinct. If family and job and friends were all exactly the same thing, then they’d only have to go on our priority list once.

If God is #1 or #3 or even #35 on our priority list, that means that there are a whole bunch of other things on our list that have nothing to do with the Lord and Giver of Life. With God as a first priority, the Almighty might get 3-4 hours per week. You might go to Sunday School and worship. You might pray and meditate. You might fix a casserole for a sick neighbor, but then real life kicks in. You’ve got to get back to all of the other priorities that were neglected when you were making God number one.

But scripture proclaims: “the earth is the Lord’s and all that is in it” (1 Corinthians 10:26). Herein lies the problem. When you and I make God a priority we relegate God to a small part, a very distinct subset of being. But God doesn’t want to be relegated to a single part of our lives.

God has ordered existence so that God is the substance of every part, the logic behind every choice. Abraham Kuyper (1837-1920)—Dutch Reformed pastor and Prime Minister of the Netherlands, in his inaugural speech, proclaimed: “There is not one square inch in the whole domain of human existence over which Christ who is sovereign does not cry out ‘Mine!’”

Following God cannot be relegated to a small part of life. Following God changes the way we do everything else. When we love God with all of our heart and soul and mind and strength, we will love God in the way we serve our family, the way we build our friendships, the way we earn our paycheck. God wants to be the substance of every part of life, the logic behind every choice.

So stop trying to make God your top priority. Live, instead, a life that is more radically faithful. Give God everything.

Go out and preach the Gospel, using words if you have to.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ!

Greetings from the Warm Heart of Africa! We have been back in Malawi now for 3 weeks and are starting to return to our routines, as much as routines can actually exist in the ever-changing scenarios of real life.

We returned to Malawi to a vehicle that had been in an accident while we were gone and is un-drivable, and within a week our house-keeper had a life-threatening health emergency. After the fear had worn off I chuckled to myself that this seems to be our life, one mishap/disaster after another. It seems there's rarely a moment where life moves along at a steady peaceful pace. I laughingly told a friend "well that's the life of a mission co-worker isn't it?" But as I have reflected, I think that this is often the case for anyone around the world, regardless of their job or where they live. I imagine that many of you have had seasons of your life where there always seems to be some bump or mishap occurring.

When we were in the USA this summer I popped into a Christian bookstore to buy a devotional for a young lady who had been living with us over the past year. I came across a devotional - Gracelaced –that focuses on the steadfastness of Christ across the seasons of life. The first page of the book reads: "This is a book for those who wrestle with the seasons of the heart. It's for those of us who need to remember that who we are and who He is never changes, even though everything else – including our own hearts – rarely stays the same." When I read this, I immediately bought a copy for myself!

It has been rejuvenating for me to read these devotionals in these weeks that we've been working on re-settling back to life in Malawi. I often get bowled over by the circumstances of my life – they seem to overwhelm me. I seek to be a person of joy and steadfastness, but the bumps seem to perpetually make me lose my footing. As I have been focusing on God's steadfastness, God's unchanging faithfulness, I've also been searching for the silver linings in the bumps we've been experiencing.

My silver linings:

Thankfully everything worked out well with Amayi Khumbanyiwa (our housekeeper). She was able to get the care she needed and is recovering well. Being with her in the hospital was scary, and brought to life for me the 'stats' that I know about healthcare in Malawi. It made it personal. Sometimes, when we live next to poverty we become numb to the realities. I'm thankful that my heart can continue to grieve with others, and even more thankful that even with the healthcare challenges that exist here, good outcomes do happen!

Primarily because car parts are difficult to find, we have to order parts for the car from South Africa. It will likely be another 2-3 months before the car is drivable again. Without a vehicle we are having to depend much more on our community, and become creative in how we get things done in a big city. A friend of ours – Bright Mleta - drives a taxi and he has been picking up Jathniel and I in the morning, dropping Jathniel at school and then me at a café to work, and then picking us up in the afternoons. Daily time together in the car has opened up opportunities for great conversation – I've learned new things about other transport opportunities between cities, learned more about the university educational system, and the current political climate. Being without a vehicle is challenging when we can't hop in the car and get stuff done when we need to, but it is deepening friendships and expanding our knowledge of Malawi. It is also providing a regular income for a friend. I will miss this time once our car is fixed.

We had a whirlwind trip this summer visiting with many of you! For those of you we saw, we are thankful for renewed connections. It is such a joy for us to see your faces again and to fellowship together in person. For those we got to meet for the first we are excited to deepen those relationships over the coming years. For those of you we weren't able to see, we hope we'll see you next time we're in the USA.

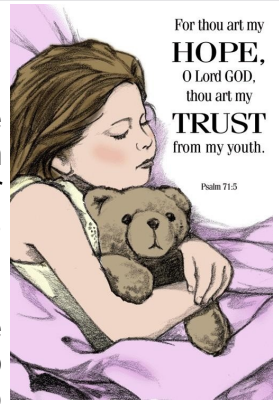

Your fellowship with us is a silver lining! Thank you!

Resting in God's steadfastness,
Luta

A Place to Sleep

We have helped 227 children so far in 2018, making a grand total of 1,686 since December 2009. And, as it always is, there are 47 children on the waiting list. With your help, we raised $4,344.53 online through Give for Good Louisville on September 13. Cash and check donations totaled $1,035.00 making a total of $5,379.53, and this is before any bonus $$!

Since no one raised $1,000 or more individually, we will be auctioning off the 4 piece patio set during a fundraiser in February (more below). Thank you to everyone who donated and especially to those who went out and gathered donations. A Place to Sleep operates on God's Grace through volunteers and donations.

CALLING ALL RUNNERS!

If you or someone you know is a runner and has either ran a mini/marathon or is thinking about it, A Place to Sleep wants you to join our team for the Kentucky Derby Festival minimarathon/Marathon on April 27, 2019! Send us the names and contact information of any runners you know. We'd like them to sign up to support our charity, A Place to Sleep! Registration is now open at KDF.org, just look for team "A Place to Sleep" under social teams, then sign up to raise money for us. We will be reimbursing the entry fees of anyone who raises at least $500!

COSTUME COLLECTION

Cadence Collins and her Give A Kid A Brighter Day ministry will again be collecting and donating Halloween costumes and Trick or Treat buckets for the children at the Home of the Innocents. She plans to also include a book this year.

Costumes for all ages are great. Several boy costumes have already been donated, so if you need to choose, girl or gender neutral would be good. Nothing too scary, though.

Last day to donate is October 14 so Cadence will have time to organize, purchase any parts needed, and take them to Louisville to the children.

Questions, contact Maree Collins at 502-321-2788.

December 8

Norma Beasey, self-proclaimed "Bag Lady", is still collecting:
